

The tombs of the Wajin in a crouched position with their head facing to the north

No.5 tomb You can see the yellowish-brown soil which was the tomb's hole and the black rectangle of soil was the trace of the coffin. Coins were excavated from here.

No.130 crouched burial tomb. There are lacquerware, coins and nails in this picture.

The coffin of No.33 tomb(size 87 cm×69 cm)
The field worker (168 cm) in the tomb in an example burial position.

Inside of the No.5 tomb
The coins and lacquerwares were used to decorate the inside and outside of the coffin.

The coffins which were in the burial tombs seem to display the crouched in the tomb in an example position. The size is at most 1m × 70 cm. According to the teeth, head and skull, people who were in most of these tombs were positioned to face the north. There were also coins from China, lacquerwares, beads from rosaries, ink stones, and parts of armor, etc. We believe these are tombs of people who believed in Buddhism.No.5, No.129 and No.130 might be for children because these were smaller than the others. We found coins outside of No.5 and No.129. This means that people threw coins while filling the coffins.
